

Missing Link for Manifesting Miracles

By Jeannette Maw

Are you a dazzlingly skilled reality-creator? If not, here's a crucial element to becoming one: live in alignment with your core values.

It's a much-overlooked element to manifesting success. Yes, we all know about clarity of goals, intending, focusing and allowing. But are you living your values? Do you even know what your core values are?

When aligned with your values, you're in the flow, life is good, and you couldn't screw things up if you tried. When you're not, it's nearly impossible to manifest the good stuff.

That's why it's important to not only know your core values, but also live them.

Values are what's important in life, and they differ for everyone. Mine, for example, include independence and freedom - which is why I didn't thrive until I escaped the corporate slave trade. My former colleagues, on the other hand (who probably value security and structure) are perfectly happy with their lifelong corporate careers.

Your core values may include honesty, learning, growing, helping, inspiring, spirituality, adventure, humor, family, relationships, excelling, connecting, educating, etc. (The variety of "values" is as vast as the people identifying them.)

When we're not honoring our values, our manifesting efforts are handicapped. For that reason, my tip to you is to identify your personal values and consistently make choices in alignment with them.

It may be your missing link to manifesting miracles!

Jeannette Maw is an Attraction Coach and founder of Good Vibe Coaching in Salt Lake City, Utah, who helps clients make their wish lists come true by leveraging the Law of Attraction. Powerful tips and strategies to manifest your dreams are yours free by signing up for Jeannette's "Get What You Want" ezine at www.goodvibecoach.com.